Since 2007 Thomas Bondiguel has worked at the Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs as a diplomat. An experienced negotiator he is specialised in European negotiations, business with Asia and security and defence.

After studying European public affairs, Thomas Bondiguel began working at a think tank before joining the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He spent six years in Brussels, where he worked on two occasions with the Permanent Representation of France to the European Union (2007-2009 then 2016-2020). He also worked at the Directorate of Strategic Affairs at the Quai d'Orsay (2010-2013) then at the French Embassy in Singapore as political advisor. He is currently appointed at the French Embassy in Prague as exchange diplomat with the Czech government. During his career he had to deal with negotiations with complex stakes to protect both France and Europe's interests, as well as with intercultural exchanges.

His rich experience as a negotiator, due to the diversity of the positions he held in the field of international relations over the past 15 years, have bestowed him with sharp knowledge on intercultural and diplomatic negotiation and in how to assist businesses in preparing for, conducting, closing, and debriefing any kind of complex negotiation.

In 2022 he joined ADN Group and works with organisations on the themes of complex negotiation, diplomatic negotiation and intercultural relations.
